BAGNIOISM ROUTED.

Judge Dowling and Superintendent Kelso as Moralists.

Arraigning and Sentencing the Proprietors of the Chatham Street Dens-Three Months' Imprisonment and a Fine of $200 Each-A Special Sessions' "Extra"-The Judge's Address - Warning to Social Evilists.

The old Egyptian building in Centre street was yes here being no less than five hundred people who ected in consequence of the report that an extraordinary court was to be held by the Judges of the Court of Special Sessions for the purpose of tryng and sentencing the proprietors of the dens of ille that were pulled last week. As soon as the loors of the great hall were opened the crowd rushed in and took possession of every inch of available room. The subject of the prosecution mass of humanity, for a silence so profound existed that the "stillest," "smallest" voice could have been Judges Dowling and Shandley entered and occupied the bench, followed by Assistant District Attorney liows, who was present to watch the proceedings on behalf of the people.

THE PRISONERS WERS MARSHALLED OUT IN TWO ROWS chind the bar, the men forming the front line, while the females stood behind them in all their tawdry gorgeousness and with a deadly pallor on each face, as though they possessed a presentiment of the fate that awaited their husbands. A bevy of he "gentlemen of the bar" were present, while the very moment before the formal opening of the ourt to confer with their clients. It was impossie to look at these men without a feeling of awe mounting almost to terror, and a conviction that if bie to look at these men without a feeling of awe amounting almost to terror, and a conviction that if any one should be so unfortunate as to fail within their power his chance of escape would be small indeed. Most of them were the very representation of what history depicts Caesar Borgia to have been—capable of any crime or Machiavellan intrigue for the destruction of human life and rosesses of all. The Fiendish qualifications which men who delight in dark deeds and underground dwellings alone can utilize. The dens in Chatham street were every night the scene of rapine and wrong, poor countrymen and poor, ignorant and credulous sailors generally being the victims of their machinations to the loss of all their property, and what is still more precious, of their neath also, alliered by the untruthful placards or signs outside and the decelifin-sound of sweet music which strikes and tended by the untruthful placards or signs outside and immorality to his own destruction.

THE NAMES OF THE PRISONERS

are Herman and Sophie Gerdis, 75 Chatham street: Marie Braun and Elizabeth Gesser, Theodore Bliss, John Clark, Henry Ornance, Joseph Borenger, John Bormann, Ernest Gleifer, John Kraus, Kate Smith, hiving, respectively, at Nos. 103, 111, 141, 77, 79 and 38 Chatham street.

The court being formally opened, the senior counsel opened the defendants' cause by a motion to have them discharged, masmuch as they all desired to retire from the odious business in which they had been engaged. This motion was promptly denied, and all the prisoners, with the exception of Kraus, pleaded guilty. An examination was at once made in bis case, and as it was not proved that he had kept a disorderly place, as represented, he was discharged, with a severe reprimand. The senior counsel now made an urgent appeal in his clients' behalf, and said:— if the Court will take into consideration the plead of guilty in these cases, I submit that a suspension of sentence will meet the ends of justice, and as they have all desired to quit the avocation

W. F. Howe said:—We are informed by the columns of the public press that this is but the beginning of a crusade against these houses, and that steps have been undertaken in the interests of humanity, a matter in which I concur.

Judge Dowling—You have no right to bring that forward as an argument. Whatever appears in the papers can be cited, but not used in the madner you infor.

well, sir," continued the counsel, "we are fully are that these nulsances should be abated. This he object we have in recommending a plea of ity and a suspension of sentence in order that may remove. I know this court can reply by ing that npwards of twenty men who were ared in Greenwich street, when that notorious raid a made, after being placed in the charge of the rt of General Sessions, have not only been bailed but have actually resumed their heiligh traffic. out but have actually resumed their helish traffic.

But in these cases, should they resume their former occupation, the Court can have them rearrested and punished twofold."

"This Court will take their plea into consideration." replied indee plowling.

tion," replied Judge Dowling. Senior counsel—What does your Honor intend to Senior counsel—What does your Honor intend to do with my chents?
"Send them to the Penitentiary II they are guilty,"

Senior counsel—What does your Honor intend to do with my chents?

"Sead them to the Penitentiary if they are guilty," he replied.

The women were next called forward, and in discharging them the Judge informed them that if they did not remove what goods and chattels they possessed and be clear out of the precinct within twenty-four hours he would order the captain of police to rearrest them, and he should sentence them to the Penitentiary for the full term on the present charges. After raising a hideous how they all left the court, with eyes streaming with tears for the objects of their affection, who stood at the bar downed to a different fate.

"Theodore Bliss," said the Judge, calling this individual forward, "the Court will hold you for the objects of their affection, who stood at the bar downed to close all houses of this character. Especially are we determined to stop their traffic along the streets where the principal lines of rail-road cars pass and repass in the principal afteries of the city. Ladies passing along in these cars are not only constantly disgusted by the remarks frequently made by the conductors to these women, but they are compelled to which are constant from the windows of the hellish places. The same remarks apply more pertinently to the travellers on the sidewalk, who see from day to day and from week to week the disgusting display of unseemly actions from these creatures in their endeavor to show themselves off before the public." The worst feature, and that which is most painful, is the fact that men leave their places with inflamed passions, and after being robbed and excited to a state of frenzy, they emerge into the streets, and too frequently commit crimes of the worst character. Only a few evenings since

A FOUL MURDER WAS COMMITTED

on a car of a line that traverses one of the principal avenues by a man who had just left one of the very dens of which I speak. (I need bardly say I refer to the death of Mr. Poulam,) The man was in a state of fr
